

Cover Cropping Management on a Vegetable Farm

Thursday, October 12, 2017, 3:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.

Meet at the River Berry Farm at 191 Goose Pond Road, Fairfax, VT 05454 at 3:00 p.m. on October 12. We will be walking to the fields, so dress appropriately.

River Berry Farm is a family owned organic small fruit and vegetable farm operating on the Lamoille River in Fairfax, Vermont since 1992. Jane Sorensen, David Marchant and their two children, Huck and Ada, along with a crew of 8-10 seasonal employees run the farm. They grow 50 acres of organic vegetables, 3 acres of strawberries, 1-1/2 acre of organic raspberries and 18,000 square feet of greenhouse.

Join us, UVM Extension and River Berry Farm, on October 12 to visit the farm and hear about their cover cropping management and seed production, see the winterkill cover crops and cover crop mixes trials, and see interseeding equipment (shown above).
