

Guided Notes: Applying Ag Research

- The steps to evaluate research are looking at the _____ and a _____.
- Are these results _____ with your operation's goals.
- In order to determine if a source is reliable or not look at a few details. Is this research _____.
- Did the project you are looking at have an appropriate _____?
- Could the project be _____ by reading the report.
- A sign of a good research project is that there is enough detail that someone who was not part of the original research could repeat or _____ the original project.
- Consider the similarities between your _____ and those done in the study.
- The size of the market can greatly impact your _____.
- One tool that can help us figure out if a change will result in increased profitability is a _____.
- A partial budget does not incorporate the _____ factor.
- A partial budget may help decide if a change is worth it monetarily but it doesn't do a good job of factoring all the _____.

