

Figure 11: Bean plants in bean-annual ryegrass treatments (two left pots) compared to bean monoculture treatments in the two pots on the right, both in sterilized soil media. Beans intercropped with annual ryegrass remained green during the duration of the study while beans in monoculture treatment progressively became chlorotic.