

Considering Agritourism?

www.FarmstayUS.com

A new service for Farmers and Ranchers who want to host travelers

What is a 'farm stay'?

Accommodation on a working farm, usually for a lodging fee

Why offer a farm stay?

Extra revenue stream for the farm and an opportunity to educate urbanites about food production

What will the website do for the farmer?

- Provide a marketing venue that reaches worldwide
- Provide access to tutorials, mentors, like-minded farms sharing best practices, and more

There are lots of city folk wanting to stay on farms, but we need more farms to host them! Let us walk you through the steps to see if this opportunity might be right for you.

Contact:

Scottie Jones
Farm Stay U.S. LLC
Scottie@FarmstayUS.com
541-487-4966

Supported in part by:

a USDA Western S.A.R.E. grant
a USDA R.B.E.G. grant
Oregon State Extension Services
Cascade Pacific RC&D

The screenshot shows the FarmstayUS.com website with a navigation menu (HOME, FARM FINDER, FARMS MAP, WHAT IS A FARM STAY?, BLOG, ABOUT, NEWS, CONTACT US). The main content area includes a 'Farm Finder' search form with dropdowns for State and Capacity, and checkboxes for Children and Pets. Below the search form is a 'Country Stories from Real Farmers and Ranchers' section with three featured articles: 'Fresh from the farm', 'Kids love baby animals', and 'The country around you'. There are also sections for 'COMMUNITY PHOTOS' and 'LATEST BLOG POSTS' featuring articles like 'Brightwood Vineyard and Farm', 'Gardens to Tables', and 'Farm Blogs Make Good Reading'. A map titled 'Farm Locations' shows the United States with numerous red location pins. The footer contains navigation links for WEBSITE, AGRITOURISM, FARM STAY US, and CONNECT WITH US, along with a copyright notice and funding information.

© 2010 FARM STAY US LLC | P.O. Box 268, Aisea, OR 97324

This website was partially funded by a USDA SARE grant.

Thank you to the following organizations for supporting Farm Stay US.

