Bayshore Run for FSEP -- A Success!

Congrats to FSEP Executive Director, Jennifer Fike for successfully completing the Bayshore Marathon in Traverse City! She ran 26.2 miles and raised almost $2,000 for FSEP and our efforts in getting healthy local food in schools. We're still taking donations for this event, so if you want to donate, click here

Update from FoodCorps

This school year, FSEP helped three schools grow their very own food gardens! Through The Whole Kids Foundation, a non-profit of Whole Foods Market, our standing Farm to School programs in Ypsilanti along with our newest partner in South Redford received $2,000 grants to build their gardens. With the support of the FoodCorps program, Ypsilanti High School and Pierce Middle School broke ground on their first food gardens this Spring. These living classrooms will offer students and staff a way to experience the food system from seed to table, while providing a range of enhancements to curriculum across the school. Ypsilanti Middle School's established garden provides a great opportunity to grow their own food to both the educational and greater community. With the Whole Kids Garden grant and the support of the Ypsilanti Farm to School Collaborative, the YMS garden is ready to keep growing! Farm to School is more than just the school garden, and Jennifer Rusciano, our FoodCorps service member is bringing the garden to students through lessons around food systems, gardening, and cooking. We are continuing to strengthen our partnerships with growers and food service directors to bring local, fresh food to our students while supporting Michigan's farmers. We looking forward to growing these efforts through the summer and into the next school year!
