

Everything is valuable

Ways to stop wasting and start using everything

Get the most from your garden

Prioritize the use of your harvest. Gardens often produce an abundance of crops. Even the less than perfect vegetables can be used.

- Keep what your family will eat fresh
- Donate fresh to food pantries and shelters. Shelters and pantries often get canned and boxed goods and fresh fruit and vegetables are greatly appreciated and often rarely donated
- Freeze, preserve, can your harvest for storing and eating when the summer season is over
- Feed farm animals leftover crops (Make sure you research what animals can eat first)
Trade and barter with neighbors and those in your community who have different animals and different crops
- Finally, throw leftovers in the compost to add to the soil for next year's garden

Country Boy Farm and Garden

 Russiaville, IN, USA

 brevandeweese@gmail.com

 765-252-8692

