Q6 - Please reflect on the conversations you had with BUYERS who WERE promising MATCHES. Why WERE these buyers a promising venue for YOUR PRODUCTS? Please explain:

Please reflect on the conversations you had with BUYERS who WERE promising...

Quantities and location

in capital district,

local, certification was okay

Looking for a local source for our product

We are selling a product no one sells on the market now.

Adirondack co op

Willingness to pay a higher price for niche products

They were looking for the products I had to offer.

seemed interested in what we offer

Buyers that were promising were primarily schools. They are interested in our product I think primarily because it is a Ready-to-eat snack, and is a NY Pride product.

3 already buyer of our products and the other seem interested in buying from us.

They appreciate how we produce food.

They were interested in carrying these products. They had markets for these products.

Q7 - A key goal of the Mixer was to provide a space for FARMERS and BUYERS to INTERACT and LEARN from each other. What did YOU learn talking with Buyers?

A key goal of the Mixer was to provide a space for FARMERS and BUYERS to IN...
How they prioritize their individual needs needs to be easy for buyer get certified
People are looking for our product
The more farmers that sell the same product are cut throat and will do anything to bash another farmers product. Heard it 2 different times from two different farmers while at the event.
Not much
They are looking for new product ideas to add to their inventory. They are interested in working with local producers and are open to negotiating mutually beneficial prices they're a lot of markets out there with potential
I learned more about the School BOCES purchasing system and how the school lunch bidding process works.
The possibilities to sell our products was greater than expected.
We have a lot of competition.
That some are flexible. There is more wiggle room at times than we expected. There are inventive distribution opportunities we were not aware of that may serve our operation.

Q9 - What were the TOP OUTCOMES of the Mixer for your Farm? Please drag outcomes that apply into the box at the right.

having buyers at mixer was nice, but it takes time and persistence to cultivate relationships

I reconnected with some fellow farmers and a previous buyer.

The food was great.

Q8 - What would make a Farmer-Buyer Mixer even more worthwhile for you?

What would make a Farmer-Buyer Mixer even more worthwhile for you?
More buyers
more buyers
Some more local to us Central New York
More buyers
I think it was very worth while time just wish there might have been more meat producers Tables and chairs for farmers to set up . Buyers showing up. Not well organized Set it up like a market and have the buyers go to the farmer's tables. It would make it easier to display marketing material and showcase samples more buyers, there were several that did not show
Have more of the buyers stay until at least 5:30, I didn't get a chance to talk to all that I wanted to speak to.
Having the opportunity to review the Buyer Directory before arriving at the event. Also, if all the buyers I wanted to meet were there. Much of the food was difficult to enjoy in a "mixer" setting.
More distributors. More operations who are looking for products we produce.
