

Birds play critical ecological roles including helping control insects, dispersing seeds, and serving as prey for a diversity of wildlife species. The presence or absence of bird species can also be an indicator of environmental health. Knowing how to identify bird species and understanding which bird species could be present can help landowners and land managers better realize their lands' contribution to bird conservation and range health.

Rocky Mountain Bird Observatory (RMBO) is dedicated to the conservation of birds and their habitats throughout the Great Plains, Rocky Mountains Mexico and beyond. We accomplish our mission through science, education, and stewardship by working with numerous private, state, and federal agencies and persons. RMBO's Stewardship Team's ultimate goal is to build a coalition of landowners and land managers actively involved in the conservation of lands important to birds.
