

The unit of measure is expressed in the number of bat passes per hour. This chart looks at the average bat passes recorded throughout the study. This chart shows tree lined commodities recorded more bat passes than the same commodity without tree lines.

The unit of measure is expressed in the number of bat passes per hour. This chart looks at the average bat passes recorded throughout the study. This chart shows the observable trend that when commodities are grown without tree lines organically managed areas show higher bat activity.