COOPERATIVE EXTENSION
PROGRAM

September 9, 2016

Dear Farmer:

On behalf of the faculty, staff, and students of the Kentucky State University College of Agriculture, Food Science, and Sustainable Systems, it is my pleasure to invite you to attend the 2016 Small, Limited-Resource/Minority Farmers Conference on November 15 -17, 2016 in Frankfort, Kentucky.

Kentucky State University has been hosting the Small, Limited-Resource/Minority Farmers Conference over the past 17 years. This year's theme is "Land, Legacy, and Way of Life." In this ever changing environment where the population is increasing and food production has become challenging, it would be an advantage to educate ourselves about the new and current trends in agriculture and related issues.

This conference will provide you with opportunities to participate in tours; listen to successes achieved by others; and learn about the "Third Thursday Thing" which will focus on AgrAbility, Farm Risk Management, and NRCS. We will have educational materials and speakers to assist you to advance your business and build stronger communities. During the conference, we will also recognize the Kentucky Small Limited-Resource Farmer of the Year.

I invite you to take the opportunity, as a community venture, to speak with our scientists and staff while you are at Kentucky State University. I look forward to seeing you at this informative and enlightening conference.

Sincerely,

Dr. Kirk Pomper, Ph. D.
Interim Director of Land Grant Programs

cc: Dr. Marion F. Simon
Mrs. Karen A. Woodrich, Natural Resource Conservation Service
Commissioner Ryan F. Quales, Kentucky Department of Agriculture
Dr. Jimmy Henning, University of Kentucky
Mr. Thomas G. Fern, Rural Development
Mr. John W. McCauley, Farm Service Agency
Mr. David Knopf, National Agricultural Statistics Services
Mr. James Coles, Community Ventures Corporation
